ABSTRACT

An approach for providing Subscriber Identity Module (SIM) capabilities in an open platform without the need for a discrete, physical SIM device. For one aspect, a computing system provides for secure provisioning of SIM data and algorithms, for example, protected storage of SIM secret data objects, and protected execution of SIM algorithms that provide for Authentication, Authorization and Accounting (AAA) capabilities currently associated with discrete hardware SIM devices.